

The Arjo sling sizing and measurement system considers both the height (where applicable) and width of the patient to determine the correct sling size.

The system includes sizing tables (with size colors) that matches patient measurements with sling sizes. The tables and instructions are specific to the different sling types and can also be found in the Instructions for Use (IFU).

There are many different Arjo sling IFUs, and in this guide, all the sizing charts and measurement instructions have been gathered in the same document to support efficient sling sizing.

This guide addresses sling sizing and measurement only and does not replace the sling IFUs. Always refer to the IFU when using Arjo slings.

How do I know that I selected the right size?

Once the sling has been fitted to the patient, there are a number of key indicators to help verifying that the right size has been selected.

Detailed guidance can be found in the section “Applying the sling” in the sling IFUs Instructions;

1. Find the article number of the sling (e.g. on the product label).

2. Identify the correct sizing chart in the product list.
3. Follow the instructions in the chart for how to measure height and width of the patient and check the chart to find the sling size.
